THE STORY: Complications continue to arise on the eve of Max Dane's wedding to Laura Reynolds. Dixie McQueen, a former girl friend, shows up not knowing that Max is to be married.

CHAPTER IX

The black cloud rolled on and disappeared in the sky far across the lake and the afternoon sun mellowed and sank until it was an orange ball on the Canadian horizon. The three of us swam from the raft to the beach. Dixie McQueen had been friendly, especially with Sandy, but was understandably subdued. She was the first to reach the beach and waded out and crossed the sand, heading for the cottage.

Sandy said, "The poor kid." "Max is suffering, too."

"Because of the way he treated Dixie?"

"Yes," I said, "but there's something else — this wedding thing. Max's mother hates the bride-to-be and is determined that there will be no wedding."

I told her of my conversation with Mrs. Dane, and with Max afterward. We passed the sundial and stopped before the cottage. Sandy said, "A real jolly family gathering."

After dinner I led the way to the library, a cool, high-ceilinged room, with book shelves on three walls, a marble fireplace, a scattering of deep comfortable chairs and a low coffee table in the curve of an ivory sectional divan. Sandy and Dixie sat on the divan and I took a chair by the table opposite them.

The three of us sat there and talked casually of movies, sports, books, even politics, and it was quite pleasant. We were on our second cups of coffee when I heard the faint sound of a car door slamming.

Sandy heard it, too, and said to me, "Company?"

I shrugged.

Both Dixie and Sandy fluttered fingers to their hair.

We waited in a strained, expectant silence. After a few minutes Cecil entered, followed by a big, tall, solid man with a rugged, tanned face and bushy shock of stiff black hair graying over his ears. Heavy black brows almost met over the bridge of a blunt nose and his gray eyes seemed oddly pale against the darkness of his face. He wore gray flannel slacks, rather soiled white buckskin shoes, a gray cashmere jacket and a dark, blue polo shirt open at the throat. He stopped beside Cecil, nodded and smiled at us, showing large white teeth.

"This is Mr. Stockmaster," Cecil said quietly. "He can neither hear nor speak."

I stood up, thinking that here was the famous novelist, a wedding guest at the request of the bride-to-be, Laura Reynolds, the man Max Dane had entertained in Chicago, and I asked myself how one communicated with a deaf-mute. Stockmaster came forward, shook my hand vigorously, nodded and half bowed to Sandy and Dixie and then gazed at me enquiringly.

"I said, 'Bennett,'" distinctly, and tapped my chest with a forefinger, like a paleface pow-wow-ing with an Apache.

He watched my lips intently, produced a leather-bound pad of paper, took a gold fountain pen from his shirt pocket, wrote on the pad and held it up for me to see. He had written: "Ben-ett?"

I smiled and nodded. He handed the pad and pen to me, grinning and gesturing toward Sandy and Dixie. I wrote, "Miss Sandra Hollis and her sister, Dixie" and returned the pad to him.

Then Dixie McQueen spoke to Stockmaster, slowly and carefully, as if addressing a retarded child. "We... met... in... Chicago."

Stockmaster looked puzzled, and then turned to me. "She met you in Chicago at a party at Max Dane's hotel." He smiled and nodded in understanding, waving his hands in a circular motion, indicating, I guessed, that there had been many people at the party and that he did not remember Dixie, which was understandable. He smiled apologetically at Dixie and lifted his wide shoulders.

Cecil, who had been standing quietly by, now touched Stockmaster's arm and made a drinking motion with his right hand. The big man grinned widely and nodded, holding his right palm about eight inches above his left. Then he wrote something on his pad, showed it to Cecil, who nodded and left. Stockmaster sat in a chair by the low table and beamed at Sandy, Dixie and me. I sat, too, and just grinned at him idly.

But it didn't seem awkward to Stockmaster. He just sat there relaxed, his long legs crossed, gazing about the room in a contented manner. Cecil brought him a tall drink which, judging from its deep amber color, must have been three-fourths whiskey. Stockmaster nodded his thanks, took a long swallow and then, as Cecil left, he put down the glass, wrote on his pad and handed it to me. I read: "Don't bother about me. Entertain the lovely sisters. Is Max here?"

I wrote: "Max is expected to-morrow noon."

Charge Filed Against Stock Promoter

HARRISON, Ark. (AP)—Theft charges have been filed in Abilene and Lubbock, Tex., against stock promoter Max Nunn, who was sentenced to six years in prison here Tuesday after pleading guilty to obtaining money under false pretense.

The Texas charges were filed by Olympic champion Bobby Morrow for a diet supplement company he heads.

In addition to the charges at Abilene and Lubbock, Nunn faces a scheduled hearing Monday in Sheridan where he is charged with embezzlement in connection with raising $16,000 for a plant which never went into operation.

Nunn pleaded guilty here to charges of obtaining $2,500 and a car from J.P. Williams in a stock transaction. He told Boone Circuit Court Judge Woody Murry that he actually lost more than anyone else in the various deals.

Nunn also is charged in Fort Smith, Russellville and Little Rock and in Trenton, Tenn.

He formerly headed the Physicians and Dentists Corp. of Little Rock.

He was arrested in Milan, Tenn., last year on the Sheridan charges, but fought extradition. Then he suddenly turned himself in to authorities in Sheridan. He had been free on bonds totaling about $48,000 until he was surrendered to officers in Harrison.

The game was up and the generals, professional soldiers, knew it.

Challe and Salan attempted one last gesture. They went to a balcony overlooking the forum, the same balcony from which Challe Monday told a cheering crowd of 100,000 his forces would fight to the death to keep Algeria French.

Challe looked down on the angry mob and tried to speak as the first shots rang out from clashes between mutinous paratroopers and loyal gendarmes. But the microphone was dead and his words were lost in the tumult of wild shouting from the crowd.

Challe, Salan and Jouhaud left the government building and climbed into trucks loaded with their paratroop followers. Zeller left by auto. All but Challe were broken men. Challe laughed and puffed his pipe.

Newsman asked if he planned to surrender. Challe chuckled and said "no." It was his only comment.

Earlier in the day Challe had sent a letter of surrender to De Gaulle placing himself "at the disposal of the government." Apparently he changed his mind.

The gendarmes mopped up the few pockets of resistance in Algiers, herded the population indoors and took away the arms of civilians they met on the streets.

In Paris, the lights went out at 2 a.m. in the Elysee Palace. The 70-year-old president of France had gone to bed, once more the victor in a situation that threatened France with civil war.

De Gaulle, who assumed extraordinary powers to crush the uprising, issued orders to the loyal troops in Algeria to shoot if necessary to restore government control.

But little fighting was necessary. The navy and air force already had rejected the rebellion.

night. One moment the military junta was urging the anti-Gaullist French of Algiers to fight to the death. Soon after they were driving off into the darkness in trucks loaded with paratroopers.

The climactic scene of the short-lived rising occurred in the vast forum in the heart of the city.

A crowd of 50,000 French settlers gathered there as rumors spread through the city that forces loyal to De Gaulle were preparing to retake Algiers.

Inside government headquarters Challe, Salan, Zeller and Jouhaud listened with sullen despair as the bad news poured in.

Mobile gendarmes, loyal to De Gaulle and supported by tanks, were approaching the city. Oran and Constantine, once in insurgent hands, had surrendered to government forces earlier in the day.

The game was up and the generals, professional soldiers, knew it.

Challe and Salan attempted one last gesture. They went to a balcony overlooking the forum, the same balcony from which Challe Monday told a cheering crowd of 100,000 his forces would fight to the death to keep Algeria French.

Americans Really Drink Coffee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans drink about 400 million cups of coffee daily, or nearly 16 pounds a year for every man, woman and child.

The Commerce Department reported this today, predicted coffee consumption will continue to rise and that prices will be relatively stable at least until 1965.

and Vince left Wednesday for Lynchburg, Va., to see Sharon Foster, a student at Randolph-Macon. They will attend the May Day activities this weekend in which Sharon will serve in the May Court. The Fosters will be joined in Little Rock by Sheila Foster and Lou Anna Hill, students at the U of A who formerly attended Randolph-Macon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith of Texarkana, Mrs. Arnold Middlebrooks, and Mrs. A. A. Smith left Tuesday for Altus, Okla., to see Mr. and Mrs. Harold Harris and new son.

Development Loan at Forrest City

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP) — A $200,000 loan offer has been made to developers of a proposed 1,000-acre recreational lake and housing project near here by the Woodruff Cooperative.

Woodruff officials said their offer hinged on two conditions: That the co-op be assured of providing service to the area and that it be allowed to continue power service to the 80-acre site where its headquarters are located.

The co-op and Arkansas Power and Light Co. are involved in litigation over service rights to the 80-acre. A 1957 law froze Woodruff's territory but AP&L has filed suit seeking to invalidate the law.

T. E. Bostick, Woodruff manager, said the co-op prefers remaining in Forrest City but would move outside the city if necessary, in order to serve its own building.

The City Planning Commission will meet May 15 to discuss the loan offer.

Seeking to develop the area are Max Sulcer, a real estate dealer, and Robert Howell, an engineer, both of West Memphis.

Forewarned Is Forearmed

By HELEN WORDEN RSKINE

Dear Helen: Help! Our daughters, 13 and 15, have been invited to spend a week this coming summer with trusted relatives. These relatives, parents of teenagers, will attend night classes at summer college, leaving their young sons and daughters, as well as our children, alone.

Our relationship with our daughters is more than that of strict parents. They confide in us. In turn we understand, love and respect them. But because of the impending visit, we feel they should be given advance sex knowledge so that they know what to expect and what is expected of them in a crisis. Our girls want very much to make the visit. What do you advise?

—Anxious Mother

Dear Anxious Mother: Let your daughters go, but first have a heart-to-heart talk with them about sex. That old adage "Forewarned is forearmed" still holds. I wish more parents had your common-sense approach. My leaflet, "Sex Education for Teenagers," may be helpful. It goes to you today.

Dear Helen: My husband and I have been together only seven months in all our two years of married life. I am 20, he 25 and stationed in Germany. This tour of duty in the Army is the reason for our enforced separation. I write him long letters every day and send him holiday gifts and cards. When he does write, his letters are filled with love but he never sends me even a small gift. Valentine's day passed without a letter or card. Does he love me as he did?—Feeling Neglected

Dear Feeling Neglected: A soldier's life overseas is no bed of roses. I've visited those U. S. Army bases in Germany and talked to the boys. Some, especially those without families, were having a tough time adjusting themselves to the hard work, strange surroundings and separation from loved ones. So give your husband the benefit of the doubt and continue to write him the nice long letters every day. He needs them.

Dear Helen: To condone the actions of a father making love to a baby sitter as you did recently, is to display the weakness of the American mind. You must have a warped idea of society if you believe, as you often say, that most of those who take the marriage vows before God, family and friends, will eventually break them. —Mrs. C. Towson, Maryland.

Dear Mrs. C.: If you recall, I advised the wife to be realistic. Knowing of her husband's weakness for girls she shouldn't have gone off partying and left him alone with the baby-sitter. Far from condoning his actions, I hoped to salvage the marriage of a wife who loved her husband. Which do you think the more Christian, for her to help him resist this weakness or damn him by walking out? Jesus said, "Go and sin no more."

Tiger Trades Seem Most Successful

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—On the basis of early returns, the Detroit Tigers appear to have been the most successful in their various off-season player maneuvers.

The Tigers, off to a blazing start with eight in a row after dropping their first game, came out of winter deals with Milwaukee and others a first-string catcher in Dick Brown, a regular center fielder in Billy Bruton and two capable relief pitchers in Terry Fox and Jim Donohue.

To fill the gap left by the departure of Frank Bolling, the Tigers moved up Jake Wood, 23, a widely heralded rookie from their Denver farm. Wood is hitting .286 and has turned out to be a good leadoff man.

With Bruton hitting in the No. 2 hole and Steve Boros, another rookie, playing third base and hitting .333, the new faces are paying off in Tiger Stadium.

Chuck Coffey, also acquired from the Braves, is a capable infield reserve behind Chico Fernandez.

Perhaps the most important of all was the acquisition of Brown, former Chicago White Sox and Cleveland catcher who went to Milwaukee in December and then was thrown into the Bolling deal a few days later. He hit only .163 in Chicago last year but is hitting .321 at Detroit.

Bullpen pitching was a real problem for Detroit before they picked up Fox and Donohue, Fox, a 12-game winner at Vancouver, the Dodgers, after winning three in a row, ran into quick trouble against the Giants, who hold a .012 percentage point edge after winning the opener of a two-game series at Los Angeles.

Chuck Hiller opened with a single off Dodger ace Don Drysdale (2-2) and scored on a single by McCovey. The Giants' first baseman then tagged a fourth-inning solo homer for the decisive run.

Right-hander Jack Sanford won his first and had the Dodgers on a string for six innings, allowing just two hits. In the seventh, Junior Gilliam drew one of Sanford's six walks and scored on singles by Maury Wills and Charlie Neal. That's when Miller hustled in for a perfect, three-inning relief job.

Miller first retired Tommy Davis on a foul pop and then got Wally Moon on a liner to Mays in center. Willie's rifle shot to catcher Tom Haller nailed Wills trying to score.

Moon, the Dodgers' hero with a NL record-tying total of eight home runs for April, was hitless for the first time in 14 games this season.

A single by Henry Aaron drove in the tying run for the Braves and an error by Red Schoendienst brought in the clincher as Milwaukee came from behind with three runs in the eighth against loser Curt Simmons (1-1) and reliever Lindy McDaniel. Lew Burdette won his first, on the third try, giving up six hits, one a ninth-inning home run by Stan Musial.

Hog Baseballers Win a Pair

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—A pair of victories Tuesday upped the University of Arkansas record to 10-9 and ended the Razorback baseball season on a note.

The Hogs routed the University of Tulsa 12-3 in the first game and topped the victory with a 12-3 triumph in the nightcap on four hit pitching by Darrell Peters.

Jerry Wheeler allowed Tulsa only four hits in the first session but needed relief in the seventh to post his victory.

Third baseman John Abrahamcyk climaxed a third inning scoring barrage by clouting a grand slam home run.

Giants Beat Dodgers, Take Over Lead

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer

The San Francisco Giants, getting standout jobs from Stu Miller, Willie McCovey and Willie Mays, replaced Los Angeles in first place in the National League by beating the Dodgers 3-1 Tuesday night. Milwaukee came from behind for a 4-3 decision over St. Louis.

The Philadelphia at Pittsburgh and Cincinnati at Chicago games were rained out.

In the American League, Baltimore defeated Cleveland 5-2. Kansas City broke loose for a 20-2 romp over Minnesota and Boston whipped Washington 6-1. Rain washed out the New York at Detroit and Los Angeles at Chicago games.

The Dodgers, after winning three in a row, ran into quick trouble against the Giants, who hold a .012 percentage point edge after winning the opener of a two-game series at Los Angeles.

Ouachita Retains Baseball Lead
ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP)—Ouachita retained its Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference baseball lead Tuesday, defeating Southern State College 7-5 in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader.

Heavy rains and hail caused the game to be called at the end of the sixth and postponement of the second game.

Don Rosa went the distance for his fourth AIC victory against no losses.

has a 1-0 record and has appeared in three Tiger games. Donohue also has a 1-0 record after three appearances. The Tigers grabbed Donohue from the Los Angeles Dodger organization in the regular minor league draft for $25,000. He had a 5-5 record in St. Paul last year.

Orioles and KC Chalk Up Victories

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles, scoring all their runs in the first five innings behind Steve Barber, defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-2, and the Kansas City A's walloped Minnesota 20-2 Tuesday night in the American League.

Boston whipped Washington 6-1 in a day game. The New York at Detroit and Los Angeles at Chicago games were rained out.

In the National League, the San Francisco Giants grabbed first place from Los Angeles by beating the Dodgers 3-1 and the Milwaukee Braves defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3. Philadelphia at Pittsburgh and Cincinnati at Chicago were rained out.

Barber, 22, left-hander, blanked the Indians without a hit until the sixth inning — when Johnny Temple extended his hitting streak to 11 games with a one-out double—but then needed ninth-inning relief help from Hoyt Wilhelm. Jim Gentile drove in three Baltimore runs, two with a first-inning homer, and Jerry Adair got the other two with a double and a single. Gary Bell, the young Cleveland right-hander who had arm trouble last season, lost his third of the year and sixth in a row since last July.

The A's rapped seven Minnesota pitchers for 16 hits—half of them for extra bases—and also collected 10 walks. They scored six runs in the third off loser Ted Sadowski, then ran off with eight runs in the sixth, all charged to Paul Giel in one-third of an inning.

Haywood Sullivan hit two triples a double and a single and drove in five runs for the A's. Norm Bass, 22, was the winner in his first major league start. The right-hander gave up seven hits and walked nine.

Right-hander Gene Conley, making a belated start after helping the Boston Celtics win the pro basketball title, was a winner in his first AL game with the Red Sox. Conley, acquired in a trade with the Philadelphia Phillies, shut out the Senators on five hits for eight frames, then needed relief by Mike Fornieles. Pete Burnside was the loser.

Aid for Distressed Home Buyers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A dormant 1959 law to help economically distressed home buyers keep their houses has been ordered into use, Congress was told today.

Federal Housing Administration Commissioner Neal J. Hardy told a House subcommittee he is ordering FHA field offices to use the authority to help not only those who are temporarily unemployed but others who are having temporary problems.

Hardy and Robert C. Weaver, Housing and Home Finance Administrator, testified as the subcommittee began hearings on President Kennedy's multibillion-dollar housing bill, emphasizing help for low- and moderate-income families.
